

Anna Yerechak with her daughters Milana, 5, and Diana, 4, on Tuesday after escaping the frontline village of Toreta, Ukraine.

Russians Hold Much of East, Subcarbs Asides

This article is by Michael Schwartz, New Season and Michael Schwartz, Ukraine — Russia's nearly three-month-old invasion of neighboring Ukraine has been punctuated by flawed planning, poor intelligence, bungled and wasted destruction. But secured in the daily fighting is the geographic reality that Russia has made gains on the ground.

U.S. Sending Billions to Kyiv, With Little Debate

The escalating brutality of the war in Ukraine has dampened voices on both the right and left skeptical of the United States' involvement in armed conflict overseas, leading a rush by Congress to pour huge amounts of money into a potentially lengthy and costly offensive against Russia with few questions or reservations raised.

Protests After a Marcos Previews

Philippine voters gathered on Tuesday near the elections commission building in Manila. Page A4.

The Hollywood Lawyer in Hunter Biden's Corner

WASHINGTON — Paced with financial pressures and a federal indictment, Hunter Biden has turned and strategic advice to an unlikely lawyer: a wealthy hedge-fund lawyer and novelist best known for rendering a narrative becoming deal for the animated series "South Park." The lawyer, Kevin Morris, has quietly taken on an expansive role as a financier, confidant and would-be adviser for Mr. Biden.

As Prices Soar, Fed Seeks To Make Up for Lost Time

For Millions, It Has Been Boom Times Amid Bad News

By David Streitfeld
This is an era of great political division and dramatic cultural upheaval. Much more quietly, it has been a time of great financial reward for a large number of Americans.

Expand Spending on Warlike Support fast becoming a major military effort drawing on American reserves.

Protests After a Marcos Previews

Philippine voters gathered on Tuesday near the elections commission building in Manila. Page A4.

Musk Pledges to Reverse Twitter's Ban on Trump

By Mike Isaac
Elon Musk said on Tuesday that he would "reverse the permanent ban" of former President Donald J. Trump on Twitter and let him back on the social network, in one of the first specific comments by Mr. Musk, the world's richest man, on how he would change the social media service.

A Preview of Changes if a Sale Goes Through

Elon Musk said on Tuesday that he would "reverse the permanent ban" of former President Donald J. Trump on Twitter and let him back on the social network, in one of the first specific comments by Mr. Musk, the world's richest man, on how he would change the social media service.

Fortified Ukraine aid deal advances

The $40 billion infusion heading for the Senate lops Biden's request

By Felicia Sonmez, Andrew Johnson and Katy Cabel
Congress is poised to approve nearly $40 billion in additional military and humanitarian aid for Ukraine, outstripping President Biden's $30 billion request and extending a fresh lifeline to Kyiv as Moscow pivots ahead with the war.

Displaced from Kyiv, a teen steps up

After fleeing west with her family, the train station volunteer says she has 'one mission: to help'

By Hannah Allam
LIVY, UKRAINE — The adults who approach teenage Anna Melnyk sometimes cry, sometimes yell.

The latest covid riddle: Relapses after treatment

In a real but rare twist, some get sick again after taking an antiviral drug.

Mark Meadows's role in Trump's play

Chief of staff was a major part of the effort to overturn the 2020 election, according to interviews, congressional investigations and his own texts.

Protests After a Marcos Previews

Philippine voters gathered on Tuesday near the elections commission building in Manila. Page A4.

Anna Melnyk, 16, sitting on a train station platform in Kyiv, Ukraine, after fleeing west with her family.

Price of gas reaches record

Biden Unable to Move Needle So Far

Ahead of new data, vows to redouble inflation fight.

Tech sector takes rare beating as crises grow

Tech companies were the darlings of the pandemic economy. Now, with skyrocketing inflation, rising interest rates, a war in Europe and uncertainty in China, the biggest tech behemoths are dragging down the stock market.

Protests After a Marcos Previews

Philippine voters gathered on Tuesday near the elections commission building in Manila. Page A4.

Protests After a Marcos Previews

Philippine voters gathered on Tuesday near the elections commission building in Manila. Page A4.

Protests After a Marcos Previews

Philippine voters gathered on Tuesday near the elections commission building in Manila. Page A4.

Philippine voters gathered on Tuesday near the elections commission building in Manila. Page A4.