By ISABELLA SIMONETTI Wall Street set records in the first half of the year, none of them

The economy is on the cusp of a recession, battered by high infla-tion and rising interest rates, which eat into psychecks, dent consumer confidence and lead to consumer considence and send to corporate cutbacks. As it has teetered, markets have tanked. The six months through Thurs-day were the stock market's worst first half of a year since 1970. The stock portfolios and retirement accounts, peaked in early January and has dropped nearly 21 percent over the last six months.

The sell-off has been remarkahly broad, with every sector ex-cept energy down this year. Bell-wethers like Apple, Disney, JPMorgan Chase and Target have all fallen more than the overall
