

CONGRESSIONAL LEADERSHIP FUND

October 5, 2023

Friends,

Tuesday was a tough day for America. The decision by just eight Republicans and every Democrat to remove the Speaker was sad, unjust, and self-defeating. Speaker Kevin McCarthy accomplished a great deal for the party and the country. We are proud to be a part of his incredible legacy. It is worth watching his Tuesday press conference here.

With Speaker McCarthy super-charging our efforts, CLF moved from an organization to an institution. We've become the single-largest spender for House Republicans. Every Member of Congress knows our work and Republicans have come to count on it. Your investments in us have elected countless rising stars, like Juan Ciscomani, Stephanie Bice, Ashley Hinson, Don Bacon, John James, Mike Lawler, Michelle Steel, Lori Chavez-Deremer, and so many more.

In a reflection of the Speaker's efforts, multiple star Republican candidates have filed in the last three weeks, including an Army Green Beret and appellate attorney, multiple CEOs, a NASCAR driver, and we expect a 25-year NYPD officer to file shortly who would be the first lesbian member of the GOP Conference.

CLF is no stranger to House leadership transitions, as we have been through productive transitions from Speakers Boehner to Ryan to McCarthy, and this will be no different. We will remain a good steward of donor resources and an effective weapon to protect our incumbents and elect standout candidates. Furthermore, we are grateful to the multiple donors who have made new commitments since Tuesday.

When the dust settles, our prospects in the House remain strong, and we look forward to working with the next Speaker of the House and the House Republican Leadership team. CLF remains hard at work and focused on our mission: expanding a Republican majority in the House of Representatives.

Thank you for your continued support,

Dan Conston
